DIED OF WOUNDS.

Harry Fitzgerald, Orwell Boy, Killed in Action—Other War Notes.

Orwell, Nov. 11.—An official telegram received here states that Harry Fitzgerald died in France Oct. 10, from wounds received in action. Private Fitzgerald was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald of this town. He was born Feb. 9, 1895. He attended the public schools here, was a student of the Burlington high school during the year 1915-16 and was competing a course at the Albany Business college when he was called to the colors. He entered the service April 20 of this year and was soon transferred overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Saltus, also of Orwell, received a dispatch from Washington notifying them that their son, John L. Saltus, was wounded Sept. 10, degree undetermined. He was gassed in August and had just returned to the front. He was formerly a linotype operator for the Free Press. He enlisted in the 98th infantry at Camp Greene.

St. Albans, Nov. 11.—Word has been received by W. G. Cummings of the Highgate road that his brother, Corporal C. S. Cummings of Philadelphia, was killed in action Sept. 30. Corporal Cummings, who was 27 years old last January, was a member of Co. D, 215th infantry. He was an employee of the Messenger company about a year.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Charlie Chaplin at Park to-night.—adv. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKenzie of Mercha street returned this morning from a business trip to Boston.

Miss Evelyn Wood of Montreal is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Peterson of Long street.

The funeral of the late William E. Catto will be held at his late residence, 52 Franklin street, Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 2 p. m.

Autofists whose cars are decorated to-day with "Give" posters and auto stickers are asked to leave them on during this week. Per order local committee.

The ladies' union of the Presbyterian church will hold a regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Park, 337 North Main street, Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 sharp.

Older residents of Barre recall that the late Lyman Taft rang the church bell at the surrender of General Lee in the Civil war. He also tolled the bell when President Lincoln was assassinated.

Montpelier's celebration of the signing of the armistice will take place this evening, beginning around 8 o'clock, and the traction company will hold its cars at that city long enough for all Barre people to return home after the festivities are over.

Dr. H. L. Pache, an inspector for the state board of health, who has been passing several days in the city while looking over the work done by the local board of health in cleaning up the influenza epidemic, returned yesterday to his home in Burlington.

To insure a sufficiency of fireworks in the demonstration planned by the citizens of Barre to celebrate the humiliation of the Hun, two auto trucks set out from Barre for Boston late Saturday afternoon. They were driven by E. M. Laws and Manager Joseph E. Nelson of the Barre Gas Co., each of whom was accompanied by a helper. It was originally planned to have the cargo of pyrotechnics arrive in Barre in time for a celebration to-night, and unless a number of signs fail the explosives will be here according to schedule. The fireworks were ordered before the auto truck started for the Hub, and it was expected that little time would be lost in taking on the cargo.

Nothing but the pangs of peace interfered with the largest exodus of deer hunters from Barre in years, when the open season for hunting deer began this morning at sunrise. The curtain riser for deer hunters found many natives already in quest of big game, but the number of sportsmen who had established themselves in camps hereabouts was small in comparison with those who were on the point of joining the legions when news came that far bigger game had been cornered in a much larger area overseas. Undoubtedly the prospects of a celebration such as few are privileged to witness in a lifetime prevented many at the last moment from shouldering their guns and starting for the trackless forests. The deer were not unmolested, however, for Saturday found a considerable number of hunters established in their favorite haunts, and while no reports of deer killing had been received at noon here in the city, it is probable that successful hunters will make their good fortune known before to-morrow.

"How Will Barre Meet the Next Epidemic?" was the subject of the Sunday evening sermon in the Barre Congregational church yesterday, when the pastor, Rev. F. L. Goodspeed, gave an illuminating resume of the lessons to be learned from the plague which visited this city only a few short weeks ago.

It was the second Sunday service in several weeks, religious gatherings having been proscribed by the board of health along with other public gatherings. A sizeable congregation heard the clergyman's narrative of the circumstances which precipitated the most disastrous epidemic in the history of the city. At the First Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. Edgar Crossland, was heard in what may prove to be the last of a series of actual war sermons. The clergyman's subject at the Sunday evening service was, "The Moral Aspects of This War." While the pastor preached, the plenipotentiaries of the so-called German government were affixing their signatures to a document which spelled the end of Hun atrocities.

Momentary expectations of an announcement that victory had been signaled by the signing of an armistice kept Barre's population on the anxious seat yesterday. There was a feeling of expectancy in the air, and when church services got under way, the feeling that almost anything might happen before the congregations were dismissed did much to increase the somewhat subdued excitement which prevailed. In a number of instances it is known that clergymen who shepherd flocks in Barre were ready to dismiss their congregations on short notice, and if the signal for the celebration which took place to-day had sounded, there is little reason to doubt that the churches would have been quickly emptied, so eager were the worshippers to join in a demonstration which was destined to mark the end of a crusade far greater than any of the middle ages. All day long crowds scanned the bulletins posted in The Times' windows, but the event which crowned their vigil did not come until long after most folks had retired.

much other naval work aside from that of taking over and guarding German and Austrian naval vessels, remains to be done. Removal of the thousands of mines laid by the allied, American and German navies will form no small part of this work and undoubtedly the fleet of mine sweeping and laying craft sent overseas by the United States will assist in this task. The greatest mine field is that put down in the North sea as a barrier against German submarines. The mines were manufactured in this country and were laid largely by American ships.

With the return of all German submarines to their bases, allied and American shipping once more may sail the seven seas without fear of molestation and in disregard of the regulations made necessary by Germany's unrestricted warfare. There will be no more running at night without lights, with its attendant dangers of collision and zig-zagging and deviation from established shipping route.

Much of the shipping used for war purposes will be freed for peace time commerce and there will follow a gradual relaxation of the restrictions as to food and other necessities imposed upon the peoples of the allied countries. These changes will not come immediately, however, for it is the purpose of the American and allied governments to co-operate with Germany, Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, as well as with Belgium, Serbia and Rumania, in furnishing as far as possible the food and other supplies necessary for the civilian population of those countries.

These considerations of world peace important as they are, must be adjusted as they develop. They could not be planned in advance as has been the breaking up the military forces of the United States, Great Britain, France and the orderly return of the millions of soldiers to their civilian status.

In this country the problem has been taken up with reference to its two chief phases: The strictly military, having to do with the demobilization of the army and its safe return to America; and the industrial which deals only with the infiltration of the soldiers to the ranks of labor after they have been released from the army. A third problem of demobilization will deal with the mobilized industries of the United States.
